CODE OF ETHICS

ABOUT THE TRANSPORT FORUM

The Transport Forum started in March 2007 under arivia.kom and was later acquired by T-Systems. Since inception, the Transport Forum has offered a complimentary platform, free to all who wish to attend and engage in matters relevant to the transport sector. In June 2018 the Transport Forum became a private company and due to sponsorships being the sole source of income all costs are being kept at a minimal to maintain the free and complimentary platform that all have come to know the Transport Forum to be. The company has one employee, the director and custodian, Harry van Huyssteen.

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

The Transport Forum will uphold the highest standards of ethics to support the reputation of The Transport Forum and that of our stakeholders and sponsors. To that end we will not tolerate any breach of this Code of Ethics (hereafter called The Code), whatsoever by any Transport Forum employees or Transport Forum Suppliers, whether directly or indirectly, intentionally, or unintentionally.

The Code is intended to promote ethical business practices within the Company.

As a general principal, all reference in The Code to local and national laws mean the relevant local and national laws prevailing in the country in which the supplier carries out its business.

The Code is based on the United National Universal Declaration of Human Rights, The Conventions of the International Labour Organisation, and the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child.

The Transport Forum is committed to respecting human rights and will not participate in or be party to any activities that support, promote, or enable the abuse of human rights and we accordingly expect our suppliers to exercise the same principles.

It is The Transport Forum's policy to conduct all its business in an honest and ethical manner. It takes a zero-tolerance approach to bribery and corruption and is committed to acting professionally, fairly and with integrity in all its business dealings and relationships wherever it operates.

No form of bribery (defined as an inducement or reward offered, promised, or provided to gain any commercial, contractual, regulatory or personal advantage), including improper offers for payments to or from customers, suppliers, organisations or individuals is tolerated.

No individuals associated with the management of the Transport Forum will make or accept facilitation payments or kickbacks of any kind and must avoid any activity that might lead to, or suggest, that a facilitation payment or kickback will be made or accepted.

The Transport Forum is committed to conduct business in a sustainable manner, minimising any negative impact on the environment.

Transport Forum sponsors and associates are encouraged to raise concerns about any issue or suspicion of malpractice at the earliest stage possible. The contact person is:
